Presentation title	Residential Travel Plans The integration with urban design and transport planning
Presentation Remit
Residential travel plans are a management system for influencing peoples's travel choices & aim to reduce the number of vehicle trips onto the road network than would otherwise be expected from the new development. They encourage uptake of public transport, walking, cycling, car sharing and car clubs and work best when they are part of resource consent. Residential travel plan techniques have the greatest effect when urban design and streetscape reflect the possibility of choice for an occupier and relevant infrastructure is provided. Curved small roads slow down traffic so pedestrians may cross quickly and safely. Comfortable buses, bus stops accessible with real time information. Proper cycle parking etc...
